Memories will never die

During WWII, Minsk Ghetto was considered to be one of the largest in Europe. Opening in the summer of 1941, its residents were held there until October 1943. During this period of time, the black muzzle of Nazi hatred absorbed almost 100,000 Jews, including tens of thousands deported from Austria, Poland and other European states. Minsk recently held a ceremony to mark the 70th anniversary of those terrible times: Memorial Days of Minsk Ghetto. → 6
